Old Belvedere (22) v. Somerset Yeomanry (0).
Played on Saturday at Belvedere Park, Jones's road, when Belvedere, who turned out a very strong side, gained an easy victory by 22 points to nil.
Belvedere were constantly attacking in the first half,
but only one try was scored, this being got by T.
Crean, but was not converted. In the second half Moran scored a clever try, which was followed by four more, two of which were converted. Result:—
Old Belvedere—2 goals 4 tries (22 points).

BLACKROCK COLLEGE, CASTLE (8) y. SOUTH AFRICAN STUDENTS (5).

The South Africans (Students) sustained their first defeat in the League Competition on Saturday, when they went under to Blackrock College (Castle) in the College Park, after a fast and interesting game, by 1 goal 1 try to 1 try. Much interest centred in the match owing to the positions the teams occupied in Section "B" of the League, as a win for the South Africans would entitle them to meet Merrion (Section A) in the final of the League, while a victory for Blackrock would necessitate another meeting between themselves and the South Africans. There was a fairly large crowd present when the following teams lined out

MENTIONS FOR SERVICE IN

Harris and M Terran were a sound pair of centres, the former being particularly good in the second half. W. Cunningham was always prominent at stand-off, but was handicapped somewhat by the slow passes from the scrum half, who otherwise played well. McCrea, Hewat, Barrett, and Young were about the pick of the forwards. For Wanderers, Wakely tackled well at full, whist Middleton was the best of the three-quarters, is kicking and tackling being decidedly useful. cennell made a good scrum half, and Moore did cell in the concluding period. The most noticeable in the pack were Orichton, England, and Hill. The names of the undermentioned officers, warrant officers, men, and nursing staff have been forwarded to the Secretary of State for War by Lieutenant-General Sir G. F. Milne, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief, British Salonika Force, for gallant conduct and distinguished services rendered during the period from 1st March to 1st October, 1918:— Wanderers—Nil,

R.A.F. TRIALS.

* MATCHES POSTPONED.

Owing to unavoidable circumstances the excelent programme of trials arranged by the R.A.F. to decide the representative liteen in the international tourney has been seriously disturbed. Owing to the inability of several men to make the journey of the inability of several men to make the journey to the game between the sast and France last presday had to be abandoned, and on Friday frost to the game between France and Ireland, the ground at the Rectory field, Blackheath, being at twould be obviously unfair to pick the representative side without giving the French team a hance of selection, it has been decided that the eams should meet on Monday at the Rectory field Blackheath, at 11 a.m., as the ground at Queen's linb is unife. The trial, South East v. South West pranged to be plated there on Saturday, has been ostponed until Monday afternoon at Blackheath. It is to be hoped it will be possible to bring off his game, as several fine players are entaged, including Captain Mitchell, M.C., who has fewered in rish trials, and has a creat reputation as a full-mark. Lieutenant Lawton Moss, M.C., the scrum alf, and Lieutenant Symington, Major Munday. In the properties, the last-named acting as captain, Moss is a lever scrum half, with a strong defence. Clarke have played frequently for the Public Schools Scriees, the last-named acting as captain, Moss is a lever scrum half, with a strong defence. Progress at Paris. The Paris Conference is making such good progress that it is anticipated that, by the end of this week, it will be able to adjourn and allow some of its members-Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George, for example—to return to their respective domestic problems. During the past three has had time to shake itself into working loped in various directions. If that properhaps, ensured the maximum of elasticity and the minimum of friction that the question of procedure has largely been left to settle itself upon the principle of solvitur the Great Powers and five delegates representing the other Allied countries, and dealing, respectively with the questions of case for the abolition of private enterprise? responsibility for the war, reparation, the As yet there is no sign of food "trusts" League of Nations, international labour extending their operations to all the conditions, and international control of markets of the world and the formation of These five Commissions, which are empowered to take evidence from any quarter committee on these possibilities seem to be from which it may be offered on the far too pessimistic. Even if events prove several subjects entrusted to them, will that its views are justified it would not be report to the full Conference. In the beyond the powers of the Allied Governmeantime the main work of the Conference ments to deal effectively with the "trusts is being discharged by the "Council of and "rings" by other means than those Ten." It has already dealt with the ques- suggested. tion of Russia-though in this case it appears that it will be necessary to provide an alternative solution to that which it first proposed-and with the question of the disposal of the German Colonies from the ordeal with greater honour and and the occupied territories in Turkey-in-Asia. It is now proceeding to deal with the most urgent questions of territorial settlement in Europe. Its procedure is of the most flexible kind. The delegates of the other countries interested in the question under review are called into consultation of the conflict and opposed the mighty force which the enemy had produced as the result of forty years' preparation. They stayed the oncoming rush of barbarism for a sufficient length of time to enable Asia. It is now proceeding to deal with tion, and the advice of experts is also sought. In any case of dispute, if the and thus may in truth be described as "the hearing of the evidence of the parties to the dispute leads to no solution, they retire and consult experts appointed by the Council. The points in dispute are thus narrowed down to such an extent that the first practical application of the principles of the League of Nations in the second of these cases has made it easier to solve the European territorial problems which are now under review. The recent declaration of the Council that the use of force in the settlement of territorial discontinuous control of the same spirit and patriotism now when they are faced with the colossal now when they are faced with the colossal task of rebuilding their ruined towns and in the solutions. Many of them could if they industries. Many of them could if they surroundings their ruined towns and in the control of the council that the use of force in the settlement of territorial discontinuous control of the same spirit and patriotism now when they are faced with the colossal for the second of these cases has made it easier to solve the European territorial problems which are now under review. The recent declaration of the Council that the use of force in the settlement of territorial discontinuous control of the same spirit and patriotism now when they are faced with the colossal for the council that the use of industries in the United Kingdom, where they have in the United Kingdom in the council that the use of the United Kingdom, where they have in the United Kingdom in the Council that the use of the United Kingdom in the Council that the use of the United Kingdom in the Council that the use of the United Kingdom in the Council that the use of the already occurred for possession of this district, which is a coal-mining area of great importance, especially to Bohemia, which is badly supplied with coal in the territory over which it exercises undisputed possession. An agreement has now been reached whereby, pending the final delimitation of frontiers by the Peace Conference, the Czechs undertake not to pass beyond a certain zone and to supply Poland with coal from the Teschen district in accordance with specified conditions. The Council is now proceeding to deal with the much more difficult Balkan problem, beginning with the differences between Rumania and Serbia. Both these countries lay claim to the Banat of Temesvar, for Rumania and Serbia. Both these countries lay claim to the Banat of Temesvar, for merly a part of Hungary, which is at present policed by French troops with a view to keeping the peace between the two parties. The whole of Temesvar, a district of very mixed race, is claimed by Rumania by virtue of the secret treaty concluded with the Allies before she entered the war in 1916. Of this treaty Serbia had no cognisance, and it is understood that Mr. Wilson, supported by Mr. Lloyd George, takes the view that neither this nor any other secret treaty can be regarded as valid where it conflicts with the principles on which the general peace is to be based. The settlement of this question is of peculiar importance, since, if the secret treaty in this case is invalidated, the same ruling will apply to the secret treaty with Italy, which assigned parts of the Adriatic coast to Italy without reference to the interests of Serbia or parts of the Adriatic coast to Italy without reference to the interests of Serbia or the wishes of their inhabitants. It is QUEENSTOWN AND PRESIDENT probable that in all these cases the Council will decide to renounce the fetters of pose and are in process of demobilisation. The Ministry of Food is one of the few that are still necessary, and the question how long it shall be retained is exciting keen discussion. Opinion on the subject is sharply divided. In some quarters there is an insistent demand that the Ministry shall be abolished at the earliest possible moment. It is contended that the system ... 6.11 P.M. of control is hampering the reconstruction of trade, and that its removal is essential to the return of cheap prices. On the The Iright Cimes. other hand, the proposal that the Ministry shall be made a permanent pertion of our of Lanne State machinery has met with wide sup-State machinery has met with wide support. Amongst the authorities by whom it is regarded favourably is a sub-committee of the Consumers' Council. This committee has considered the question from all its different aspects, and its report, therefore, is an important document. The committee believes that it would be "a great misfortune" to the country if the work of the Minister and its rapions committees assistant manager of the engine works, subsegood progress that it is anticipated that, by the end of this week, it will be able to adjourn and allow some of its members—Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George, for example—to return to their respective countries in order to deal with urgent domestic problems. During the past three weeks the machinery of the Conference has had time to shake itself into working has had time to shake itself into working order. No gathering in any way comparable with it has ever been held before, and no clear ideas as to its manner of working were formulated when it assembled. In these circumstances it has, replaced in the sole of the state of the possibility of the sole of the sole right to import the ill-tated Titanic. They were lifelong friends and business associates. Mr. Cuming was generated as one of the ablest shipbullers and understances are successful foodstuffs. It is obvious that such a course is open to grave objection on several grounds. A Paris correspondent describes to day the machinery which has come into being as the Conference has got task. In the first place, there are plenary sittings of the full Conference. These are held at rare intervals, and their function is to adopt agenda and to ratify decisions reached by the smaller bodies by which the actual work of the Conference is done. In the next place, there is what may be called the Grand Committee of the Conference, the "Council of Ten," consisting of President Wilson and Mr. Lansing, the Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, France, and Italy, and the representatives of Japan. Finally, there are five specially appointed Commissions, composed of two delegates from each of the Great Powers and five delegates representatives. The commissions is settle itself upon the principle of solvieurs and shipping rings which might have the weapon against foreign food trusts and shipping rings which might be strong enough to keep prices inflated. A second argument is that in times of fluctuating prices State purchase would secure the importation of articles when risks involved. No country suffered more in the war than Belgium, and no country emerged glory. Alone and unaided the intrepid Belgian Army sustained the first shock of France and Britain to marshal their forces, thus narrowed down to such an extent that arbitration is relatively easy when the matter is again brought before the Council. The machinery employed, indeed, is that of a League of Nations in embryo. This method has already been applied to the council of Russia and the Colonia, and the consequences of opposition would be. Yet they did not hexitate to take up arms against the invader. The recent declaration of the Council that the use of force in the settlement of territorial disputes would be held to prejudice the case of the party which employed force has had a good effect; and it now seems probable that these disputes will be equitably settled to the satisfaction of all parties on lines which promise stability and permanence.

The first territorial problem with which the Council has had to deal is that of the conflicting claims of the Poles and the Czechs to the district of Teschen, lying on the borders of the territories which they control. Armed collisions have already occurred for possession of this district, which is a coal-mining area of great importance, especially to Bohemia.

point of view significant to him—the effective prosecution of the war—the man best qualified among his colleagues, past and present, to be a member of the War Committee.

Mr. Lloyd George, in his reply, pointed out that Mr Asquith had gone back on his own proposals, and added: "I have striven my utmost to cure the obvious defects of the War Committee without overthrowing the Government. Many a time with the road to victory open in front of us we have delayed and hesitated while the us we have delayed and hesitated while the enemy were erecting barriers that finally checked the approach. There has been delay, hesitation, and lack of foresight and vision." On December 5th Mr. Asquith acknowledged Mr. Lloyd George's letter, and expressed the view that the correspondence need not be published. Mr. Lloyd George said that he could not resign war, he had to be kent. Lloyd George said that he could not resign without announcing the cause. He had to give reasons for the grave step he was taking. This was followed by a letter from Mr. Asquith announcing that he had resigned, but deprecating the publication of the correspondence at the moment. The Atlantic Monthly states that the letters thus published have been circulated privately, and even printed privately. It, therefore, takes the responsibility for making them public property. I should add that a statement was issued from 10 Downing street to-day on the authority of Nations on its true basis. It

The rumours set afteat regarding dissensions in the Peace Conference are discounted by those people best able to judge of the situation in Paris. It has been said that there will be no indemnity de-manded from Germany, and that there has been much trouble concerning the disposal of the German Colonies. The facts are—the question of indemnities has not yet been before the Conference as a formal matter, while it is more than probable that a most satisfactory solution will be found exerciting the future of the context. ound regarding the future of the captured

It is said that one of the reasons why the Prime Minister did not return to London this week-end was that his return and presence in London would have been ooked upon in some way as an encourage ment to the men out on strike. Mr. Lloyd George has so often stepped in at the last moment to arrange some kind of a settlement that it is possible the strikers enternight have been the case in the Government will no longer encourage the dea that the men can revolt with impunity against their chosen leaders.

Quietude has been restored at Glasgow but industrial peace seems to be remote The most serious development to-day in the labour situation was at Birmingham, where a meeting of delegates of the Rail-way Clerks' Association decided that, uness a satisfactory arrangement of the negotiations now going on with the Board of Trade is reached by Tuesday evening, action will be taken. This action practically, means a railway strike, for the railway clerks will be supported by the other organisation of the railway workers. other organisation of the railway workers. The difficulty seems to the layman to be one that should easily be arranged. I believe the main point in dispute is whether station masters and railway officials of similar grading should be recognised as members of the Railway Clerks' Association. The men claim that this recognition was once promised, but that the promise has not peen kept

Some little anxiety is felt in London as waymen's strike would step many of the trains. No great alarm, however, need be felt. The Government will not allow a paralysis of the means of locomotion if it can be prevented in any way, and, again, the atmosphere of London is not like the Government acts with firmness and discretion, the danger may be averted; but

Some surprise is expressed here at the naction of Trade Union leaders in the present labour troubles. Ostensibly, they seem to be doing very little to bring about an understanding between the men and the employers. Perhaps, they are doing all that is possible in the circumstances, but these are so complex and difficult that they may be at a loss as to the steps they are gradually letting all their power be filched from their offices, and presently they will find themselves utterly re-pudiated and discredited by both sides, Some people are inclined to grumble at the postal censorship which still prevails on foreign letters, but it seems that it is doing a considerable amount of good work. The post provides evidence of the persistence with which German business houses are trying by underground methods to re-establish trade connections here. A special representative of the Press Association telegraphs:—There was considerable movement in Glasgow on Sunday, and the presence of the military gave the principal streets an unwonted appearance; not that there was any disorder, but large crowds, especially in the strike, and it was only hypocrisy for anyone to say that they were acting against the wishes of their own leaders across the Channel. They were detailed to guard the railway terminus, the bridges, the electric power stations, and the respective forms of the event of sudden emergency arising.

Arising out of the occurrences in George Square, several cases were before the Supendiary on Saturday. Emanuel Shinwell, William Gallagher, and David Kirkwood, the leaders in the strike movement, were charged with having, between 27th and 31st January, in George Square, assembled and combined for unlawful purposes, and conducted themselves in a riotous, violent, and menacing manner to the alarms of the lieges. Major Clyde McGilp, D.S.O., whose death is reported in the Auckland (N.Z.) Star of the 15th November last, was in command of the last gun in action at the evacuation of Gallipoli. He left New Zealand with the main body, in command of the First Battery, N.Z.F.A., and served through the Gallipoli campaign. On one occasion he was instrumental in saving an Australian battery from destruction. Major McGilp served continuously in France, and was awarded the D.S.O. for conspicuous bravery and gallant conduct. He returned to New Zealand in May last owing to ill-health, and was appointed Chief Instructor of Artillery at Featherston Camp. He was son of Mr. and Mrs. McGilp, Birkenhead, N.Z., and grandson of the late Mr. William Douglas, formerly of Lisnevagh, Rathvilly.

the Conference it is relatively easy to arbitrate upon, and, owing to the care taken to judge fairly the merits of each case, the disputing natious are quite willing to accept the decision of the Conference. It is believed that the Conference has already stopped one small war by acting in this manner, and that the procedure adopted is not only facilitating the framing of the reces terms, but also constitutes an im-ays:—A provisional agreement has been eached on the subject; of the Teschen region, reached on the subjects of the Teschen region, and only the signatures of the Polish and the Czecho-Slovak delegates are required to give it validity. It imposes obligations on the Czecho-Slovaks not to pass beyond a certain zone; to send back the Polish prisoners; not to take further steps in the matter of military preparations, and lastly, to supply Poland with coal in accordance with specified conditions. On Monday the Allies will provide a Comprision M Bratiano, who yesterday contended for the allocation of the Banat to Rumania, to-day indicated other territories to which Rumania lays claim, over Bukovina, Bessarabia, Dobrudja, and Transylvania. Pending the decision of the Conference on the fate of these regions, M. Bratiano urged that the Banat and Transylvania should be occupied by the Allied troops to prevent the advance of Echheviam.

The Committee of the Conference decided to appoint, on Monday, a Commission of experts, to meet in Paris, each of the Great Powers being represented by two members, to discuss the Rumanian problem. Thus the Conference is gradually having recourse to the rational system of Special Commissions for the consideration of all the various questions.

THE TIPPERARY MURDERS.

Several auctioneers in Tipperary, finding themselves prevented from holding their cattle sales in the district, have transferred the sales to Limerick outside the prescribed military area.

The inconvenience and loss attending such a course is seriously felt, but it is the only way out of the difficulty. A GUARDIAN'S COMMENT.

A GUARDIAN'S COMMENT.

At a meeting of the Tipperary Board of Guardians Mr. William R. Russell said that they all abnorred murder, but it was a sinister coincidence that it occurred in the critical days of the opening of the Peace Conference, when there was a danger of the Irish people approving of assassination and outrage. They had heard of a German plot, or what he would call a Dublin Castle plot; and they had also heard of Sergeant Sheridan.

Mr. D. Quinlan said that Sir Edward Carson was the cause of the trouble in Ireland, at the present time.

A STEP TOWARDS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent, writing on Saturday from Paris, states that he learns that in British circles the greatest satisfaction is felt at the way in which the disputes between the secondary Powers are being treated by the Peace Conference. Should the evidence given by the delegates of the two disputing Powers to the Supreme Council lead to no solution of the difficulties, it is then suggested that these delegates should retire and consult experts on the question appointed by the Conference. In the discussions that follow, even if no impediate settlement be reached, the points of dispute are generally narrowed down to such an extent that when the matter is brought back to the Conference it is relatively easy to arbitrate upon, and, owing to the care taken to judge The Chairman, in supporting the resolution, said that it was unjust that innocent people should be made to suffer for the blackguardism

The resolution was passed.

The Clonmel Rural Council also passed a resolution of protest against the stoppage fairs and markets through martial law.

PSYCHICAL RESEARCH. DEBATE AT THE ABBEY

THEATRE. Last evening, in the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, a large audience listened to a discussion on the subject of "Psychical Research from the Catholic Point of View," the protagonists being Professor John Howley, M.A., of University College, Galway, and Mr. W. B. Yeates. Professor Wm. Magennis, University College, Dublin, presided.

College, Galway, and Mr. W. B. Yeates. Professor Wm. Magennis, University College, Dublin, presided.

Professor Howley began by saying that he was not in any sense a theologian, and that in whatever he said he was giving only the views of a Catholic Church. It required courage to come forward and profess belief in the manifestations which were known under the title of psychical research. Many of them were so incredible that the average man was inclined to reject them at once. He would restrict his observation to what were called spiritistic manifestations. He had no practical experience of those matters, except what he had derived from books. Last year a question was submitted to Rome for an answer by the Congregation of the Holy Office as to whether it was lawful to be present at these spiritistic seances, even though one took no part in them. The answer was no. He took it that the decree of Rome on the subject meant to forbid the attendance of Catholics at spiritistic seances, even as spectators. Why did the Church ask Catholics to abstain from being present at these spiritistic seances? He should say that it was a question of giving scandal by appearing to tolerate what the Church condemns. He did not take it that the Church condemns. He did not take it that the Church asserted in every case that what takes place is of diabolic origin or is necessarily superstitions. The invocation of the spirits? It teaches that, besides the creation of the souls of men, God also created an immense number of pure spiritis; that a portion of these spirits fell from grace, and

MUNITION TRAIN EXPLODES.

MANY PERSONS KILLED.

A Brussels telegram, dated Friday, states that a munition train exploded that afternoon between Aubauge and Longwy. Sixty German soldier prisoners, three French soldiers, and one American were killed, and a large number were injured. The accident was due to the careless act of a soldier who dropped a shell. Railway traffic is interrupted between Alhus and Longwy.
